

CHAMBER VOTES AGAINST JUBILEE FOR RICHMOND

that it may be rescheduled to-night. When Lee Camp reopened discussion of the proposed celebration, a committee of the Chamber of Commerce, composed of both business and labor organizations, report the proceedings of the conference, learn the position of these organizations on the proposed semicentennial celebration, and assemble again in the Jefferson Hotel on Monday night, May 12. Resolutions were adopted urging all organizations to defer action on the plan until some definite proposition can be reported. At the next meeting, the committee from the various bodies will form a permanent organization.

Labor Council Not There. Although invited to share in the discussion, neither the Central Trades and Labor Union, nor the various labor unions of the city sent representatives to the meeting. When Samuel Cohen, chairman of the Retail Merchants' Association's peace jubilee committee, and the Chamber of Commerce, were present full delegates from the following organizations: The Richmond Advertisers' Club, the Travelers' Protective Association, the Chamber of Commerce, the Business Men's Club, the Retail Merchants' Association, the Howitzers Battery and the First Battalion, First Regiment of Virginia Volunteers.

Announcing the plans, Chairman Cohen said that there is a general sentiment that the time is ripe for a celebration of the rejuvenated peaceful property of the once-crushed and bleeding South, and that Richmond, as the capital of the Southern Confederacy, is the logical scene of such a festival. To lend the project such magnitude as it deserves, he said, it is necessary to win the support of the State and Federal governments. He thought that the celebration of the rising of the South from the ashes of war will appeal to the entire country. By united action, the celebration should be made a national event. Both the navy and the army, it is understood, will be ordered to mobilize in the East in the summer of 1915, and with little pleadings, large sections of both branches of the service can be obtained for the Richmond celebration.

Like Industrial Idea. Mr. Cohen's introductory remarks, while arousing enthusiasm, provoked prolonged discussion on the propriety of celebrating the end of the Civil War on the scene of the closing chapters of the tragedy. Even before W. T. Dabney rose to commend the project, adverse action of the Chamber of Commerce had been agreed to discard the name "peace jubilee" and substitute the less objectionable title, "peace celebration." Dabney declared that the Chamber committed against the jubilee, proposed the industrial semicentennial exposition, which was heartily received. In all probability, he said, the reunion of the United States will be held in 1915 in connection with the dedication of the Confederate Memorial Institute, and the historical coloring may be obtained without the celebration of the tempestuous ways of a peace jubilee.

What will become of the peace celebration plan, which has already aroused the fierce opposition of the Confederate Memorial Literary Society, and the Chamber of Commerce, will not be known until the next meeting. The indications are that the peace celebration will be a compromise between the idea of an industrial and commercial exposition of the South's fifty years of progress.

The winners who go from here for the meet: Mile race, Wirt Sale and Charles Hollins; half-mile, John Freeman; 100 yards, Reginald Rowe; pole vault, Eugene Nide, Jr.; Professor Blackhead accompanied the boys. They will leave Friday night.

Cazeaux Throws Lurich. New York, May 8.—Raymond Cazeaux, of Bordeaux, France, proved his right to a match with Zbyszko by defeating George Lurich, the Russian champion, in a wrestling match twenty minutes. After injuring Lurich's right knee early in the bout, the Frenchman gained a too-hold. The men were near the ropes, and the referee called the bout. Lurich, suffering from a groin strain, left the ring and Cazeaux was awarded the fall. Lurich failed to return after being allowed ten minutes rest, and the Frenchman was given the bout.

Thomas, the Club Cat Dead. Thomas, the famous black cat of the Westminster Club, who has been known exactly how old he was or how long he had been around the club, but he had rubbed his kindly paw on the feet of hundreds of members, and when he felt sprightly he would jump when he was handled. He had been ailing for some time. The other day he refused to shake hands on cat food, he did not even open his eyes when called, and he was chloroformed. He was properly buried, and the rats were glad.

Atlanta Special: Mr. E. D. Bishop, who resides at 22 Plum Street, and is a conductor on the Peachtree and Whitehall car line, and has been an employee of the Georgia Railway and Electric Company for twelve years—possibly some of you remember reading last November about Mr. Bishop being stricken down on his car in convulsions. As was stated, it seemed to be caused from an acute attack of kidney trouble, or what is known as gravel stones passing over from the kidneys to the bladder, which is the severest pain known to the human body. He was taken to the hospital in that condition, and for days his life was hanging by a thread. His condition improved a little; then he was taken to his home, but he kept

ERUPTION ALL OVER FOOT AND LEG

Up to Knee, Burned Severely, Itched So Badly Nearly Went Crazy, Scarcely Able to Walk. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment and Was Cured.

1021 Payne St., Louisville, Ky.—"About four years ago I got some poison on my leg. My foot broke out in pimples and began to itch so badly I could not keep from scratching it bloody. The eruption spread all over my whole foot and leg up to the knee. My leg was as red as fire. The itching would keep me awake at night, and I scratched so hard the blood ran down over the whole leg. It would then burn severely. I could not stand a stocking or a shoe on that foot or leg it was swollen so badly. Every summer my leg would get so terribly sore and itched so badly I nearly went crazy. I had to keep it wrapped up all the time. I was scarcely able to walk and hopped around on one foot all summer.

"I tried all kinds of salve and medicine but nothing cured my leg until one day I saw Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertised and commenced to use them. After the first application I went to sleep and slept all night. I used two cases of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment on my leg and was cured." (Signed) Mrs. Geo. Heilmann, Apr. 16, 1912.

BOOSTERS DEFEAT VISITING TEAM

Appalachian League Opens in Bristol Before Crowd of 1,500 Enthusiastic Fans.

Bristol, Tenn., May 8.—More than 1,500 people, including 1,320 paid admissions, witnessed the opening game of the Appalachian season here this afternoon, and saw Munson's newly organized "Boosters" defeat "Soldiers" of Johnson City by the score of 7 to 3. Cy Pearce, who hails from Richmond, pitched for Bristol, and showed splendid did form, holding the visitors to five hits. Hall, who went in for the visitors, although one of the best in the league, was so freely lambasted in the second that Manager Martin told him to get out after five runs had been made. The home lads were then able with batting enthusiasm, and proceeded to land on Baver, who was substituted, until two more runs were made. But this was the end of Bristol's run-getting, for Baver soon settled down and kept hits so scattered that Munson's men were unable to score again.

Munson demonstrated that he has a splendid bunch of hitters and fielders, and that the rest of his pitchers aren't like the rest of his hitters. Pearce in the opening game, the Boosters are destined to his winning stride. Bristol's second baseman, Betzel, had the distinction of getting two two-baggers in the second inning, while Jenkins, first baseman for the visitors made all the scores to the credit of the visitors.

Score by Innings: R. H. E. Johnson City, 0 1 0 0 0—3 5 1 Bristol, 7 0 0 0 0—7 12 3 Umpire, Brandon. Time, 1:50.

MOORE DENIES REPORT. Progressives Will Not Join Republicans in Naming State Ticket. [Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Raleigh, N. C., May 8.—Thomas Lee Moore, leader of the Progressive party in Virginia, was asked to-night concerning the report that the Progressives were planning to join with the Republicans to name a State ticket. Mr. Moore in emphatic terms denied this report, and says that under no conditions would the Progressives ally themselves with the Republicans, and further says that a conference of Progressive leaders will be held in Richmond next week when the question of sending representatives will be taken up.

having relapsed. At times it seemed as though he would have to die with that awful pain in the kidneys and bladder. He continued on in this way from November until the first part of April. About that time Gray, the appearance in Atlanta, and commenced advertising that he had brought with him a Quaker medicine that did the work that others left undone; that he was going to remain in Atlanta until he had proven to the people, and by the people, that the Quaker Herb Extract and Oil of Balm are the greatest medicines in the world, as cures for kidney and bladder troubles, catarrh, rheumatism, indigestion, constipation. Mr. Bishop had read of this, and as he had tried every other treatment and nothing seemed to give relief and an operation was advised as his only hope, he sent and got one bottle of Quaker Herb Extract. As he said he had very little faith, but did not want to knife used on him if he could help it. To his surprise, he commenced to feel speaking contemptuously of Mr. Bryan, who, on the preceding day, as it happened, I had introduced to him at a reception.

WORDS TO HARVEY BRAND J. T. MORGAN A TRUE PATRIOT

"And do you recall," he asked, "those lines from Scott that you quoted when that man—I can hear now the emphasis upon those two words—when that man had left the room?"

"I did, of course, and began to repeat: 'Breathes there a man with soul so dead, Who never to himself hath said—'"

"I hesitated for an instant and the succeeding words came from the big arm chair with odd distinctness: 'This is my own, my native land.'"

"Then, very quietly, Mr. Morgan asked if I could recite the remaining lines, and I quoted imperfectly: 'Whose heart hath ne'er within him burn'd, As home his footsteps he hath turn'd, From wandering on a foreign strand? If such there breathe, go, mark him well.'"

"Half a minute, gentlemen, is a long time, but for fully that period I should say, Mr. Morgan said perfectly still. Then, unconsciously beating time upon the arm of his chair as he used to do in church, he repeated as if soliloquizing: 'Who never to himself hath said, This is my own, my native land.'"

"And rising with difficulty from his chair, for he was then quite feeble, he said, with the emphasis that only quietude can give: 'When you see Mr. Wilson tell him for me that if there should ever come a time when he thinks any influence or resources that I have can be used for the country, they are wholly at his disposal.'"

Words of a True Patriot. "Barring the last words I heard from the lips of Mr. Morgan. They were the words of a true patriot, of a great, a very great American, spoken from the depths of a passionately loyal heart. Surely I can do no better than to leave them with you to remember to cherish and to feel so long as you all shall live in this, our native land."

Referring to Mr. Morgan's testimony before the Pujio committee at Washington, Colonel Harvey said: "Although mentally as strong as ever, physically he was sadly broken when summoned to Washington. At his age and in his condition, it was the severest ordeal of his life; but it was for the best, as he himself came to realize.

"I hated to go," he said to me, with characteristic simplicity the day before he sailed away. 'I hated to go, but I was glad I went. I think I did some good.'"

"It was a comprehensive utterance in his usual few words—a revelation, too, of his innermost thought and as I had spoken of the favorable impression that had been created by his testimony and he had evinced the keenest appreciation.

"Yes," he had said, "I am convinced that what you say is true. I think they know me better now. I hope so." "No sensitive man, no human man—and Mr. Morgan was most sensitive and most human—could have failed to be touched by the multitude of friendly expressions which had come to him from all sections of the country."

Thrust at Marshall. A caustic thrust at Vice-President Marshall's recently expressed idea of the State confiscating all over $100,000 of the fortune of a dying rich man was launched by Colonel Harvey in his speech yesterday. "In cynical vein," he said, "the spokesman from West of Raleigh," who had gone into office averring that he was "to inaugurate four years of silence."

Obviously, to Mr. Marshall's mind, there are but two distinct classes of human kind. Said Colonel Harvey: "One he depicts as the 'thoughtless rich,' the other, presumably, is the thoughtful poor. Why does Mr. Marshall suggest $100,000? Why not $13,000? The number of those able to bequeath $10,000 is but a small fraction of those who have more. Why, if we are able to embark upon confiscation at all, should we restrict ourselves?"

Colonel Harvey found fault with the Vice-President's "warning against New York," saying: "What does Mr. Marshall want us, 6,000,000 of thoughtless New Yorkers to do? Wherein have we erred of late so as to deserve rebuke or require a warning?"

Next, he, in his view, looking backward, as he says in our fault, we were wiser to him as a candidate a plurality of 200,000? Was our Legislature at fault when it approved a constitutional amendment providing for a Federal income tax? Was New York out of step with what Mr. Marshall regards as progress when it declared for the election of United States Senators by popular vote?

"Mr. Marshall seems to have concluded that the people of this community are preparing to antagonize the policies of the Democratic administration. But how can that be when the representatives whom they elect to Congress are acting in perfect accord with the leaders of their party? Where are the signs of opposition?"

"I doubt if Mr. Marshall quite realizes yet that he has been clear and naturally he keeps on campaigning. The trouble with him seems to be that, like Mr. Bryan in former days, he must needs occasionally talk through a cocked hat. He is like what we used employees of the factory who were examined said that they had never observed improper conduct on the part of Frank.

Two detectives prominently connected with the investigation, one from the city department and the other the representative of a national agency retained by the National Pen Company, were called to the stand near the close of the afternoon session. Each declared that he had discovered none but circumstantial evidence as to who killed Mary Phagan.

Twenty minutes were required by the coroner's jury to reach a verdict. The two men ordered held for grand jury investigation will be detained in the county jail without bail, it was stated to-night, pending action by Solicitor Dorsey, which is expected within a few days. Six minor witnesses testified at the morning session of the inquest.

PLEDGE SUPPORT TO CRAIG. North Carolina Farmers' Union Opposes Rate Discrimination.

Raleigh, N. C., May 8.—Dr. H. Q. Alexander, president of the North Carolina Farmers' Union, which called on Governor Craig to-day, speaking for the movement for elimination of freight rate discrimination against North Carolina shippers, pledging the support of the union whatever is necessary for securing just and equitable rates for North Carolina compared with the rates for other States. Speaking for the Virginia city rates, he said that the matter of rate discrimination is a matter of the Legislature and the union would not undertake to advise the Governor and council of State on this. This committee, he said, is not offering advice, but simply letting the Governor know that the farmers are with him in his having with the railroad companies.
